ARTPLACE

zAmya Theater uses community based theater to build understanding and connection between individuals who have experienced homelessness and those who have not. zAmya is based in the Twin Cities and has 15 years of experience creating plays by and about people experiencing homelessness.

Placebase Productions explores community stories through site-specific performance and the arts. Our work cultivates stewards of community identity by connecting people to their common places, stories and relationships.

The Southwest Minnesota Housing Partnership is a non-profit community development corporation serving communities throughout Southwest and South Central Minnesota. The Mission of the Partnership is to “Create thriving places to live, grow, and work through partnerships with communities.” We aim to build strong and healthy places to live so that the communities of our region thrive.
